2012 at a Glance

Serve Our Donors

Tuesday Morning Miracle Workers Fund

It's funny how little things lead to big things. That's certainly the case with Bob Sanborn and the Tuesday Morning Miracle Workers. Bob and some other buddies didn't realize that remodeling the church choir room in 1992 would lead to the construction of 42 homes through Tulsa Habitat for Humanity. Today, they are 35 people strong and, with the establishment of a charitable fund at TCF, their legacy will endure.

"Philanthropy is an active effort to promote human welfare. We are involved in our church, Habitat, Meals on Wheels and Assistance League, and all of our children are involved in serving others in their communities. I hope we will be remembered as a group who lived their faith by example through giving their resources, time, talent and effort to make their community a better place to live," explained Bob.

Cox Connects Foundation Funds

Funded by Cox Oklahoma employees, the Cox Connects Foundation (CCF) supports programs that impact Oklahomans in the areas of education, technology, health and the arts. To date, Cox employees have pledged nearly $3.8 million to support schools, nonprofit organizations, college students and co-workers in the Tulsa area. Since 2005, TCF has managed CCF's charitable funds and provided administrative support for their programs.

Cox Connects Foundation Programs at TCF:

Innovation in Education: providing grants to public and private schools (grades Pre-K - 12) to fund classroom projects that encourage and promote ingenuity and imagination.

Cox Cares Employee Relief: providing short-term financial assistance to Cox Oklahoma employees facing financial difficulties for reasons beyond their control.

Community Investments: providing grants to support nonprofit organizations in the Cox Oklahoma service area.

Community IMPACT Grant: started in 2012, this program awards one $50,000 grant annually to an educational initiative that enriches the overall educational experience and social well-being of students, grades Pre-K - 12, or students in early childhood education programs.

Community Food Bank Challenge

George Kaiser Family Foundation, a supporting organization of TCF, awarded a $100,000 challenge grant to Community Food Bank of Eastern Oklahoma to help respond to the agency's reported food shortage and to support the Food for Kids backpack program.

- The match attracted just over $380,000 from new and lapsed donors, as well as current donors who increased their usual donations. Altogether, the challenge raised $480,000 and provided 2,404,560 meals.

Planned Giving Challenge

Early in 2012, TCF announced a Planned Giving Challenge that will award nearly $1 million in general operations grants to more than 40 nonprofit entities. The Planned Giving Challenge is a competitive, matching program designed to encourage area agencies to build their agencies' future through planned giving agreements such as wills, charitable trusts and charitable annuities.

- For every $100,000 in planned gifts raised by selected agencies, TCF will award those agencies with grants of $20,000 to use for their current, daily operations.

Support Local Charitable Organizations

Tulsa School for Arts and Sciences

TCF administered a $93,750 matching program from an anonymous donor benefitting Tulsa School of Arts and Sciences (TSAS) after a devastating fire destroyed Barnard Elementary School. The donor was able to give anonymously while still providing a matching incentive to motivate the community. In total, over $197,000 was raised to support TSAS.

Family Safety Center

The Ann Patterson Dooley Family Safety Center (FSC) was in danger of closing its doors after a grant that had been the sole source of program and operating funds was not re-awarded. With the support and leadership provided by TCF and the local philanthropic community, the FSC achieved success and is now more sustainable than ever. The FSC evolved from operating as a program of Domestic Violence Intervention Services, with a single source of support, to a stand-alone public charity with multiple funding streams. TCF provided advice, community connections and resources to help secure a positive future for this agency.

- Since 2006, FSC has provided services to more than 12,000 survivors of intimate partner and family violence, sexual assault, stalking and teen dating violence.
